Kansas City has "sot" down on the Salvation Army.

It is said that 72 bushels of wheat to the acre has been raised in Washington territory this year.

St. Louis says she can go one million five hundred thousand better than Chicago's five million for the world's fair in 1892.

Major Merrill who was mentioned as Tanner's successor is mad over an interview published in regard to himself in which he says a wicked newspaper man told a lie.

According to Minneapolis dispatches the flour mill deal is not yet off. Since the famous option given on big Minneapolis milling property expired it has been generally supposed that all negotiations for the sale of the mills to the English capitalists were at an end. But it is now reported that negotiations are still pending for the sale of the Pillsbury mills, the Washburn mills, the west side water power, and the Minneapolis and Northern line of elevators to an English syndicate. There is now said to be but one obstacle in the way of the deal, and if this is overcome the sale is likely to take place next month.

Official Notice.

J. M. HUBER,
Pres. Co. Alliance.
O. CHACEY, Secretary,

in a cheserfieldian manner. Morally too, it is so much better in its influence not to be lowered to the necessity of doing your guessing with a dung hill of the gambling breed. How nice of the Capital to make such a pious distinction; it sounds so well in admitting that there was gambling at the fair; that common gamblers were not allowed at the show. If this element can always be eliminated from gambling, it may yet become popular in our churches and Sunday-schools.

Official.—The board of directors of the State Exchange will meet at Emporia on the first day of October, 1889. It is important that a sufficient amount of the Capital stock of the Corporation be subscribed and paid in previous to that date to enable the board to perfect the necessary arrangements for the commencement of business. Everywhere members are asking if the Exchange will be ready to do anything with the crop of the present year. This depends upon yourselves. It may or it may not; just as you decide. If the required Stock is paid in previous to the meeting of the Board of Directors they will be ready to commence business at once. If this payment is delayed, of course the business will be delayed unavoidably. It is therefore directed that the Secretary of each Sub-Alliance read this notice at the first meeting after its receipt, and all officers are especially enjoined to use their utmost endeavors to secure as large a subscription to the required Stock in each Alliance as possible.

The Stock so subscribed should be forwarded at once to P. M. Gilbert, at Grantville and the aggregate of the county will be forwarded by him to the treasurer of the State Exchange.

J. M. HUNER,
Pres. of County Alliance.
Attest. O. CRACEY, Secretary.

America is the only country in the world where a day in each year is set apart in honor of labor.—New York Herald. And the only country in the world where the other 364 days are set apart for the robbery of labor.—Progressive Farmer.

A late dispatch from Boston tells of an alleged change of feeling among capitalists in that city in relation to the value of western farm mortgages. This form of investment, it is said, is not now regarded satisfactory by men who have been sending their money west the last forty years. It is asserted that the president of Boston's largest bank recently said that "New England capitalists look with favor on the south as the most desirable field for investments, and during the coming winter representatives of money corporations will visit Tennessee and Alabama to look into mineral and prosperous city properties." This is not new, for these New England capitalists have been studying the southern situation for a long time, not because western farm mortgages are good security, but because the southern field is new and the harvest is ripe.—Topeka Capital.

The report of the "Special Commission on Diseases of Swine" has revived the discussion of the value of prevention of hog cholera by inoculation, and perhaps the results of experiments in that direction may be of interest to the readers of the Farmers' Review. Since "hog cholera" first appeared in this section my losses from this disease have not been less than 20 per cent each year. In 1884 the loss was 60 per cent and in 1887-'88 per cent, the loss in 1887 amounting to $1,200. As soon as the pigs were weaned in the spring of 1888 they began to die of "hog cholera," and about June 1, at my request they were inoculated by Dr. Billings. The fall pigs were inoculated in October, 1888, and the spring pigs of 1889 were inoculated in May last. As a test, one litter in June, 1888, and one litter in October 1888 were not inoculated. Over one-half of the pigs not inoculated died from cholera. My loss of inoculated pigs has been very small, about 2 per cent in 1888 and 1889. Inoculation has not stunted the pigs except a few in one instance where the pigs were quite young, only two or three weeks old. My own inoculated pigs farrowed in March and April, 1888, were sold on December 10 1888. Their average weight was 246 pounds. The inoculated pigs farrowed in August and September, 1888, were sold June 7, 1889, their average weight being 276 pounds. inoculated in May last are as healthy and thrifty as one could wish. Several hundred pigs have been inoculated for farmers in this vicinity in 1888 and 1889, and with the exception mentioned, where the pigs were very young, with uniformly satisfactory results.—S. C. Bassett, in Farmers' Review.

A labored editorial in favor of capital punishment in a paper noted for opposition to every movement for humanizing our yet semi-barbarous society, says:

"One of the dangers of woman suffrage would be that women would reason as lamely about the death penalty as about prohibition."

But give us woman suffrage, and prohibition, which that paper says is sure to follow, and if statistics and scaffold confessions mean anything there would be comparatively little use for the death penalty.—Pacific Express.
